ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

We wish to thank the many people who have so kindly given of their time and help in the research needed to complete our history of the Christian Buck (son of the immigrant Johannes Buck) family and his descendents. To those people who so graciously furnished the pictures. To Mrs. Ethel Davenport, Miss Sally Weikle, Miss Georgianna Friant of the Geneological Department of the State Library at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, whose untiring efforts unearthed many old documents and books from which we were able to obtain information which otherwise would have been unknown to us. Ardella A. Ebersole (Mrs. George L. Ebersole) D.A.R. Geneologist. Mr. William Rohrbeck of Camp Hill, Pennsylvania, for the touching up of old photos and supervision of the makeup of the book.

We beg forgiveness for any mistakes made as they are unintentional. We copied the material just as it was given to us, and, after such a long period of time elapsing since our first ancestor arrived in this country, there are sure to be some slight errors.

We humbly submit to you the first book to be written of the Christian Buck (son of the immigrant Johannes Buck) family who were among the first settlers in this country.

FOREWORD

The purpose of this book is to set forth "The History Of The Christian Buck Family", the story of our early ancestors. From the first they have held a leading place among the people of this state. Their descendents have likewise made the name Buck a very respected one, not only in the state but the nation. Their struggle for existence is traced to Johannes Buck the immigrant ancestor and the father of Christian Buck.

It is impossible to give a full and accurate account of some of the families, or to mention all who are in some way related to the family.

The best has been done in tracing out the families from over a period of two hundred and ten years, or, from the time that the immigrant Johannes Buck came to this country.

The History is taken from tax records, deeds, archives, court, tombstone, census, church records and family bibles.

COAT OF ARMS

There are about twenty-five Coat of Arms of the Buck family, mostly belonging to the Bucks of England. Our Immigrant Ancestor came from Germany, and to date I have not been able to prove which Coat of Arms belongs to our branch of the family.

Immigration to America

VARIATIONS IN THE SPELLING OF THE NAME, PALATINE IMMIGRANTS, AND THE SHIP'S LISTS

The first official census in this country was taken in 1790. At that time we find the following spellings of the name: Boc, Bock, Bouc, Buch, Buc, Buck. In German the name is spelled Bock. In a later chapter you will note in the "Quit Claim" that Christian and his brothers Frederick and John spelled their name Bock. That was one reason that I felt they were German, the other reason was the name of the immigrant ancestor Johannes, German for John.

There are several reasons why we find the name spelled so many different ways. At different times men spelled their names differently and clerks at the ports of embarkation spelled them the way they heard them pronounced. The clerks were English and too often they would not understand these immigrants, nor could the Germans understand them. Thus, many times a mark was made for the name. Is it any wonder that today so many names are lost to us?

The census records were not printed until 150 years after they were written. By then the ink had faded and many names had worn away. Although the clerks were expert they often made mistakes in interpretation of the writing.

Early in the 18th Century the people of the Lower Palatinate Region in Germany were being driven from their homes by the armies of Louis IV of France. His armies were ordered to destroy everything and everyone in their path. Louis wanted this land because it was rich fertile fruit and farm country situated in the lower Rhine Valley. Many of the Palatinates were able to flee ahead of these ruthless armies and thus began the immigrations to America. A great number of them on arrival in this country settled in Pennsylvania. Here William Penn offered them land if they would settle on it because he knew what wonderful farmers they were, and that they would clear this vast wilderness.

The word "Palatine" was applied to these people who came here by the shiploads. This was not entirely correct because many of these people came from neighboring countries of Germany.

Lists of the Palatine immigrants and their families were recorded at the Courthouse in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Our immigrant ancestor, Johannes Buch, came to this country on the ship, Two Brothers, which sailed from Rotterdam and last from Leitch. Master was Thomas Arnott.* They landed in Philadelphia October 13, 1747 and were qualified on the same day. (This means swearing allegiance to the King). These passengers were from the Palatinate and places adjacent in Germany. There were three lists passengers had to sign as follows:

- A. Captain's list.
- B. Signers of the Oath.
- C. Signers of the Abjuration, which was allegiance to the King of England foreswearing all allegiance to their own country.

SHIP'S LIST (PHOTOSTAT)

THE STORY OF THE SHIP'S VOYAGE TO AMERICA

Let us take a look at the deplorable conditions of the ships that brought these Germans to this country.

In our imagination let us journey with our ancestor Johannes Buck as he leaves his native country whose point of embarkation was Rotterdam, Holland. I have not been able to prove definitely where in Germany our immigrant ancestor Johannes lived. But, in correspondence with Mr. Martin Schäfer Rektor I. R. of Gondsroth, Germany, he has found out for me that the name Bock can be found quite frequently in some places. For instance, in the town of Gelhausen, Germany. When the population was last counted in 1925, there were 14 houses, quite often inhabited by two families, using the name Bock, whereas the name Buck can only be traced to single cases here and there. Since Johannes' sons spelled their name Bock I cannot but wonder if Johannes might have come from this part of Germany.

On the supposition that Johannes had to journey down the Rhine he had to pass through 36 custom houses to have inspection. These inspections only took place when it suited the officials. This process took five to six weeks. Because things in Holland were very high priced, the delay ate into their savings. The less fortunate would use up all their savings before leaving Holland and would become obligated to the Captain of the Ship in order to obtain passage. When they reached this country the Captain would sell them in order to pay for their passage. Thus many families were separated on reaching this country, never to be reunited.

At the peak of the immigration hundreds were taken on the ships and sailed for England the last port of call. The journey took from May to October depending upon the wind.

*With such crowded conditions you can imagine the sickness that existed. People vomited continually, suffering from dysentery, headaches, scurvy, cancer, mouth rot, the latter coming from old sharply salted food and foul water. If a woman gave birth to a child, and she died, both were thrown into the sea to make room for the living. Dampness, heat, want and hunger afflicted them. Lice were so thick it could be scraped off. When gale winds raged and huge waves flowed over the decks many passengers became panicky. Then could be heard the pitiful wailing and praying of the passengers. Often those in good health would become very cruel, curse, and sometimes kill one another. Children ranging from 1 to 7 died from hunger, thirst and itch.

Now, let us look at the food situation. It was very dirty, and warm food was only served three times a week. Water was black and full of red worms and spiders nests. The miseries these people had to put up with would not bear description.

Finally, they arrived at the port of Philadelphia. Were they able to land? No. There they were detained for quarantine until the ships were examined for diseases. If a Health Officer found any diseases on Ship they had to go a mile out of port. No Captain of a Ship dared to violate this ruling or he would be arrested. If arrested, he could not be freed until he gave 500 lbs. security and be released only upon the Governor's orders. The Governor also had to issue the license for permission to let the passengers land.

When finally able to leave the Ship, most of them were barely able to walk and some had to creep from the decks. When their feet touched the ground they wept for joy and prayed and sang praise to God. Only those who could pay their passage could leave the ship. Passage fare was 10 lbs. per head or 60 florins. Children 5 to 10 years went for half fare.

People who could not pay their passage were sold and often had to wait on board ship two or three weeks before anyone bought them and during that time many died.

Every day buyers came from the city of Philadelphia and places twenty, thirty and forty miles away. (It took 4 hours to cover 1 mile). Buyers would board the ships, select and bargain for these people. Adults would agree to serve the number of years it would take to pay their passage. This would usually be 3 to 5 years. Children often had to serve 10 to 15 years or until they were 21 as a rule. In other words parents sold their children like cattle to be rid of the passage debt. This was called "indenture". If a man arrived sick, his wife had to take care of his passage. If a passenger was half way or more than half way across the ocean and died, the members of his family had to pay his fare. If he was less than half way across when he died, his passage was free.

Many times passengers' trunks and possessions were held for fare so they had no change of clothes or any means of keeping themselves clean. This helped to breed diseases and these would be transmitted on shore to other people.

It wasn't until 1765 that conditions were improved. Then each room was limited to a certain number. Ships had to carry a well recommended surgeon. Vessel had to be well cleaned twice a week. Fares were made fixed and certain and could not be changed. Any Captain found crowding his ship was fined 10 pounds for every violation.

After enduring such a trip can we not be proud that our immigrant ancestor had the stamina to survive such a journey and settle in this country as one of the early pioneers of this great Commonwealth?

*The above references to the "Ship's Voyage" were taken from H. Franklin Eshleman's History of Swiss and German Settlers, of Southeastern Pennsylvania, Pages 305 and 316.

WHERE DID JOHANNES BUCH SETTLE IN AMERICA?

After I had found out the name of the ship that our immigrant ancestor had come to America on, my next problem was to find out where he settled. This I found in the following description of Derry, Londonderry and Conewago Townships. This will also explain why the land he bought was in Derry Township when first Warrented to Thomas Rutherford and later Surveyed to Johannes Buch in the same township. His land later was in Londonderry Township when the townships were divided.

In 1768 inhabitants of said County asked court to divide said township of Derry because of its size. The inhabitants labored under several inconveniences and asked to have it divided into two parts as follows:

"Along a certain road leading from Conewago Creek by the Widow Halls, thence to Felix Landis Sr. at Swatara Creek, which said road is to fall into the east part of the said township and this be known as Londonderry and the west part as Derry Township. The court was asked to divide it equally. This division to remain firm and stable forever and as such be entered into the record."

Between the year 1813 when the erection of Lebanon County cut off a large portion of Londonderry Township and the year 1825, proceedings were started to remodel the township of Derry and Londonderry. But it wasn't until 1825 when the court appointed three commissioners, to inquire into the propriety of a division and made this report in favor of a division.

Beginning at a black oak tree on the eastern bank of the Swatara Creek, at the mouth of Stricklers Run, thence a due course 7 miles and (rod) 120 perches to the Lebanon County Line at the farm of Jacob Longenecker. This report was confirmed by the court 1826. Thus northern portion called Derry Township and southern Londonderry Township. Since that period the township has been limited in size by the erection of the township of Conewago.

CONEWAGO TOWNSHIP

This Township was organized by an act of Assembly approved April 2, 1850, which enacted "that from and after the passage of this act all that part of the Townships of Derry and Londonderry lying within the following boundaries to wit. Beginning at the Conewago Creek, the line of the counties of Dauphin and Lancaster at the place where Brills Run empties into said Creek -- and thence by a straight line running parallel with the line dividing the counties of Dauphin and Lebanon to a point at a right angle with the aforesaid parallel said line --- line will intersect the said counties of and Lebanon at a point not more than a 1/2 mile north of the Mennonite meeting house at or near said County line --- then along the line of the counties of Dauphin and Lebanon to the line of the County of Lancaster and from thence down said line to a place of beginning, shall hereafter form a separated election district and Township and shall be called Conewago".

The Township is so named for the Creek which forms its entire southern boundary. It is 4-1/4 miles in length by 3-1/2 miles wide and in population size the smallest in the County. The Southern portion along the Creek is a beautiful plain which gradually slopes from its northern margins the granite ridge towards the Creek. It has good pasture meadows and fine farms. In the northwestern part are sand hills which culminate in a few prominent spurs belonging to that system of which Roundtop in Londonderry Township is the most striking. Beautiful springs gush out of these hillsides, and as the early settlers built near running water, some of the oldest farms are found in this locality.

Indian implements are frequently found, tomahawks, axes, arrow heads. Two hominy stones, capable of holding a peck, are in existence having been preserved - one in the possession of the Cyrus G. Shenk family, where it had it's use at their farm, and another on an adjoining farm. A curious stone of this  shape has been found. And in this locality traces are to be seen of a high fence surrounding a plot of ground, erected by the Indians for trapping deer.

Among the early settlers in the neighborhood were - Christopher Shoop, Johannes Buch, Leonard Wallers, Rev. John Roan, Robert Corothers and David Johnson. The tract of land which Moses Potts had surveyed to him March 29, 1755, he sold to Michael Shenk 1770. Other families here at the same period or earlier were the Longeneckers, Rissers, Grubbs, Lehmans, etc.

There are 3 churches within the township limits. The Mennonite (Stauffer) meeting house near the Derry line on the northeast was built about 1780 - Brethren Church 1854, and the Union Meeting House 1869.

The first schools were taught by the church minister under large trees when weather was favorable and at such other places as opportunity afforded.

In 1790 there were only 5 schools in that section principally German. About 1795 an English school was organized where Henry Shenk later lived. It was taught by Stephen Templeton.

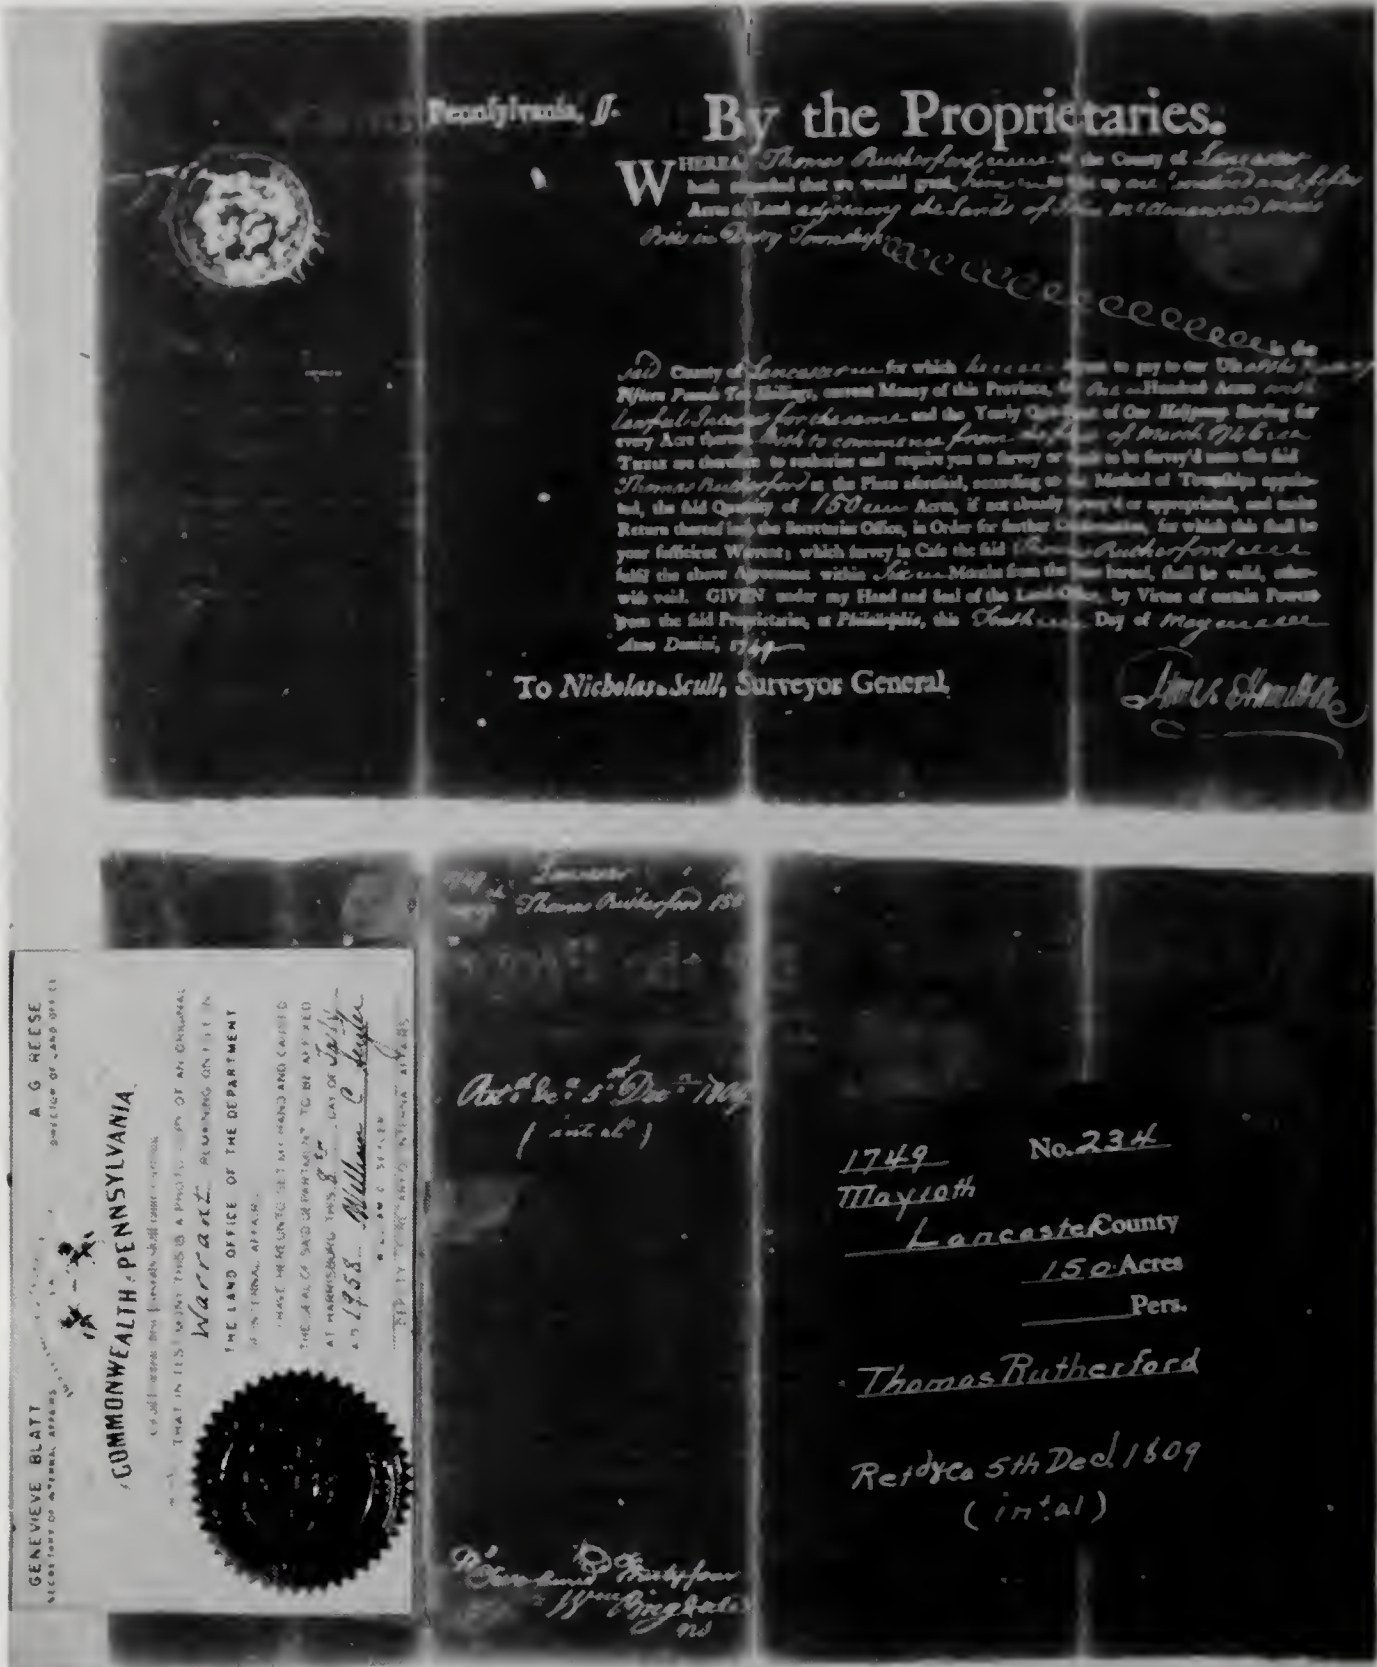

The one story log school house - 12 x 16 feet in which Templeton taught, comprised 3 rooms; a bed room, kitchen and a school room. On each side a portion of a log was left out for a row of window panes, and it is presumed vagrants did not push up the sash for ingress to lodge, nor was the teacher troubled to open and close the shutters. Some 60 pupils crowded into this small room. Shortly after Mr. Templeton established his school, another was established by a Mr. McMullin. These schools existed until about 1800 when the schools were generally kept at private houses. For many years school was taught in the old Mennonite meeting house, down to the adoption of the present system of education.

The township has 2 villages - Bachmansville - population around 100. This is the P.O. Mt. Harrison or Foltz's Store near center of township has 6 or 8 houses. There were 3 grist mills in the township. "In early days all their grain had to be hauled to Philadelphia over poor roads and little or no accommodation for man or beast by the way." "Teams halted at night by some stream of water, the feeding trough was fixed upon the wagon tongue and there the horses ate and slept, no matter how inclement the weather, the drivers stowing themselves snugly under the wagon-cover in the 'fuhrmous bet' - 4, 5 and frequently 6 horses constituted the team."

Note: History of Dauphin and Lebanon Counties by William Henry Egle
Pages 419 to 422 inclusive.

In searching early tax records I found that Johannes was taxed in Londonderry Township, Lancaster County, now known as Conewago Township, Dauphin County, Pennsylvania. In 1771 he was taxed for 50 acres of land, 2 horses and 3 cattle. This 50 acres was called Deer Park. In 1772 and 1773 he was taxed for an additional 100 acres of land, this was called Wheatfield. At that time land sold for ten pounds for 100 acres. A pound in Pennsylvania was worth $3.24. Therefore he paid $32.40 for his land or 32¢ an acre, plus a Quit Rent.

This land was first warranted to Thomas Rutherford in 1746. Below is a photostat copy of the original Warrant as given to Thomas Rutherford. #1/ You will note that it reads in Derry Township. This was surveyed before the township was divided into Londonderry, Cone- wago, etc. To date I have not been able to locate the exact spot of this farm, nor its present owner.

JOHANNES BUCH FAMILY

Johannes Buch the immigrant ancestor was born in Germany. Date and place of birth unknown. I presume he must have been about 19 when he came here, as his oldest child, Christian, was born in 1754. I have examined any number of marriage and birth records and have never been able to find the name of Johannes' wife. There were three known children:

1. Christian (The bulk of this book concerns only Christian
2. John and his descendents)
3. Frederick

By faith Johannes was a Mennonite. Among his descendents have been Dunkards, Brethren, Mennonites, Baptists, Methodists and Lutherans. Our European ancestors must have been of sturdy stock to withstand the persecutions that today seem unbelievable. They were tortured, murdered, imprisoned and driven from place to place, many times having no place they could call home. With all of this they clung to their religious doctrines and never gave up their faith and belief in God. Many times they were very poor and oppressed in every way but their courage never left them. Is it any wonder they fled to this land of freedom?

When they settled in this country they proved themselves very thrifty and industrious. Because of their knowledge of farming and cattle raising they were very careful to purchase very good land. Once they obtained their land, they always erected the barn first, and it was always larger than the house.

The men were quiet, hard working and persistent. Their word was as good as a bond and this is also true today. The plainness of his church was also true of his home. Almost all of the men married and all of the women did likewise if asked. Small families were very rare.

The women were true helpmates to their husbands. They were thrifty, modest, retiring, and homeloving. Then, as now, these people were known by their plain dress, anything else was considered worldly. The Mennonites are very deeply religious, in manner very retiring, their ways very thrifty, peace loving, and God fearing.

In Lancaster County they built their first school in 1712 and their first church in 1740. Prior to 1740 church was conducted at the homes of the members.

It would be very hard to say how much these people have contributed to the prosperity of this great Commonwealth.

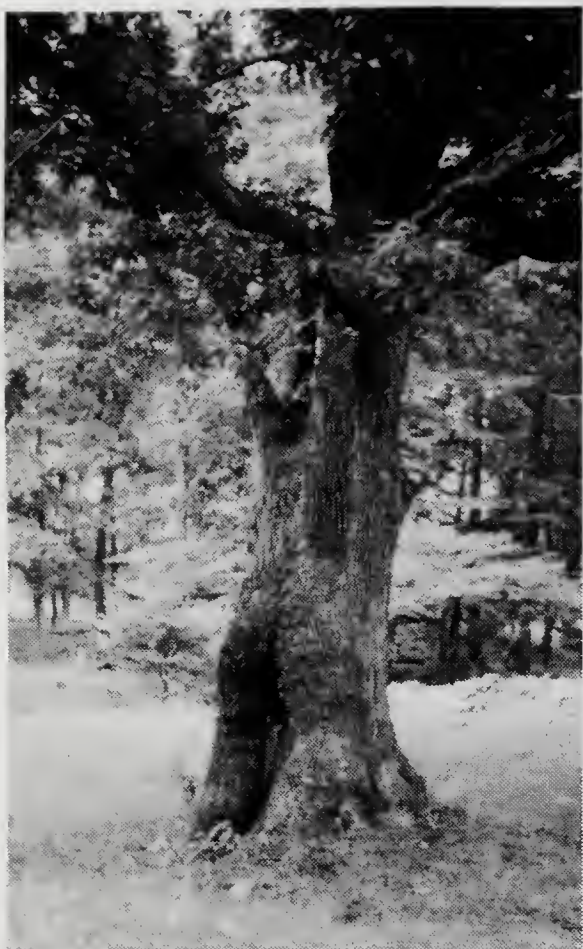

The Mennonites do not hold Government office or take oaths. Thus during the Revolutionary War they gave food or animals to the army or served in the Militia. (This was the home guard.) Below is Johannes' contribution for the cause of freedom.

During the Revolutionary War Johannes gave 3 bushels of wheat, and 3 bushels of forage for the army in the Lancaster County quota. Reference to this is found in the Pa. Archives Fifth Series Volume 7, page 1143 as Grain and Forage for the Army in 1778.

During this war the army had no storehouses for grain nor money to buy, so, they collected grain and forage from the farmers. In the same way also was collected horses and wagons. For example: one horse from one farmer, a wagon from another, etc. and then one of the men would be taken as the driver. If anything would happen to the horse or wagon the owner was later reimbursed for his property.

WARRIORS MARK

Christian and Catherine Buck and their son, John Sr., and his family were among the early families to settle in the Warriors Mark Valley. Let us pause here and read what this early settlement was like at the time our ancestors went into this Valley as told by three writers, two newspaper writers and one a doctor. After reading these articles, it should make the reading of our family history more interesting.

A wealth of history surrounds the Indian past of Warriors Mark. It is not known whether the name of this town is derived from a tree or from a shooting match, but that it has Indian significance is true.

Although its heart has rotted out the noble Warriors Mark tree with a spread of seventy five or eighty feet challenges age and the elements.

According to tradition the old tree received its name because the Indians used to lay a stone in the crotch of the lowermost fork at which they aimed their arrows at target practice. At regular times it was customary for the Indians to hold marksmanship contests or "shooting conclaves" to determine the champion shots. The tree stands on the Diller Buck farm now occupied by Edwin Grazier, in a grove of trees across the road from the house. This farm is right outside of the town of Warriors Mark.

In Africa's History of Huntingdon and Blair Counties, the statement is made that there had originally been four of the target or "mark" trees and that all of these oak trees formed a square or quadrangle. Wood and bark has grown over the target stones of the tree that is still standing. Three of the trees have long since disappeared.

The lone Warriors Mark tree bears no identifying label or marker, yet it is one of the few authentic Indian landmarks left. There are the "Indian Steps" in Spruce Creek Valley, but here is a living, growing memorial.

The location of the tree brings to mind the location of the Indian Trails. The chief one was the Kittaning Trail which, trampled by the feet of succeeding generations of Indians, made such a well defined path, that the white man used it as a pack trail, later to become the main highway or "Great Road To Pittsburg, Pa."

The "Mark" tree was close to the warriors trail or the north and south path used by the Iroquois of what is now New York state to keep in touch with the Delawares, who they had conquered and were holding in subjection. Because they were subjects, the lordly Iroquois called them "Petticoats". This was a term indicating how much the Iroquois and Algonquins despised the wandering through the wilds of central Pennsylvania. The Iroquois probably joined in the marksmanship contests.

Regrettably our national heritage of Indian lore is rapidly being lost for the want of historians. Handed down through the generations by word of mouth, there were few who took the time to preserve the stories by writing them down, leaving the field open to the unbridled imaginations of the novelists and television script writers, who mix truth and conjecture indiscriminately.

James Fennimore Cooper caught the drama of the vanishing red man in his book "The Last Of The Mohicans". What a pity there was no one to memorialize the tragedy of the last Indians in this section of Pennsylvania.

The mountainous terrains, fertile valleys crisscrossed by streams rich in game and fish, were favorite hunting grounds. Thanks to J. Jones and I. Simpson Africa, the struggle between the Aborigines and their white conquerors for the possession of the lands has given us many stirring stories of valor, treachery and courage.

The thought often comes to mind, "Who was the last Indian in these parts?" A headstone in what is now the Nearhoof burial ground near Warriors Mark may contain the answer. Each year the grave is decorated with a flag to commemorate his service in the Revolutionary War. The name inscribed on the slab of marble is, Christley Pool, died 1865, age 112 years. That just about encompasses the known story of the last Indian in this area. He was given Christian burial, therefore it can be taken for granted that he had been converted to Christianity. What a pity his recollections died with him. He probably could have told the heroic story of the "Warriors Mark Tree". There is also a possibility he knew Chief Logan whose name has been perpetuated in so many place names in Blair County.

In view of the fact that there were two Indian Chiefs of the same name belonging to different tribes, the average reader, unless he is a close student of history, confuses the great orator with the Indian whose fame was less spectacular among the whites. The orator migrated to Ohio, where he died sorrowing the loss of his relatives which reduced him to the melancholy realization that "not a drop of my blood flows in the veins of any living person". The fate of the chief who lived at Logans' Spring near Bellwood is not fully known.

Piloted by Reverend H. Paul Cox of Warriors Mark and Reverend Charles L. Cox of Claysburg, I was taken to the Warriors Mark tree. It stands in a beautiful grove. Picking up Porter Cox, a spry man of 82 and the local historian, the party motored to the Harold Clark and the Edwin Graziér homes to view their collections of arrowheads, picked up on their respective farms, particularly in corn fields, and they are most interesting. Mr. Clark treasures a stone hatchet, a hammer, and another stone tool or weapon whose use is somewhat in doubt. The skill and infinite pains required to sculpture the articles from stones with other stones as implements, arrests the imagination. No wonder the Indians were willing to give everything they had for steel knives and hatchets, as well as the white man's gun.

The stories of Port Cox, of the money that came in from Pittsburgh to create an empire of iron, centered at the Huntingdon Furnace and the money following what Africa describes as the "Iron Depression", which was invested in magnificent farms to establish the domain of the dairy cow, are so fascinating as to be well worth a separate story.

Another landmark in Warriors Mark is the Post Office building, formerly the "Warriors Mark Exchange". In the days of the fast mails or "pony express" the exchange was a relay station for horses to draw the mail wagons. John Carnes who lives in the mill house ran the last grist through the mill in 1918.

INDIAN LORE

The Indian War Trail passed through Warriors Mark Valley. Starting near Hollidaysburg, where it intersected with the Kittaning Trail, it passed through what is now Altoona, Bellwood, Tyrone, Bellefonte, Lock Haven and Warriors Mark; it ended at Lock Haven.

Just back of the original Beck homestead in Warriors Mark Valley a peak rises above the surrounding part of the Bald Eagle Ridge, and is known as "Climbing Hawk Mountain". This was the home of Chief Climbing Hawk who was friendly with the Daniel Beck family, and whose body was laid to rest in the Beck burying plot. His grave is marked with the flag of the United States because of his participation in the Revolutionary War.

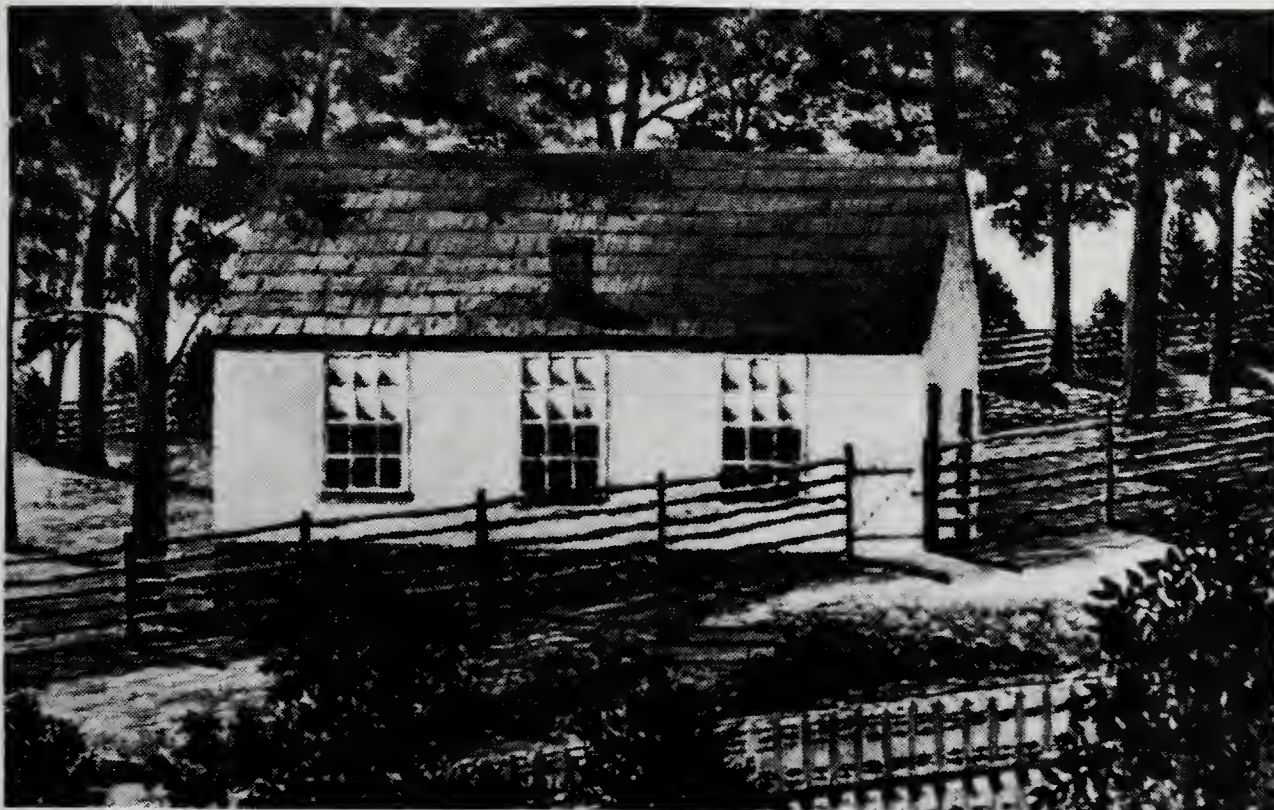

Chief Climbing Hawk was a member of the Bald Eagle Tribe of Indians, for whom Bald Eagle Valley, River and Ridge were named, as was most of the surrounding valley. Of all the tribes of Indians in the United States, these Bald Eagle Indians were the most intelligent and the most nearly civilized.

Since our ancestors were a peace loving people who had left the Old World seeking the haven of peace and domestic tranquillity which they eventually found in this country, becoming fine homemakers and good citizens and capable of being leaders in the community. Therefore they lived in harmony with their neighbors including the Indians whom they came to know and understand.

WARRIORS MARK NAMED FOR TREE USED AS TARGET BY INDIANS

Among the first Americans were bold and venturesome men who were fascinated by the vast land around them, and who were not content to stay within the confines of village or town. They moved out, tasting the wild joys of exploration, and probed this new land of lush and lovely valleys and rugged and magnificent mountains. Among them was one, William Reed.

Here was a different territory from that of the well settled east. From Harris' Ferry north and west, the great highlands of Pennsylvania marched in imposing array, and nestled among them lay rich valleys.

Mr. Reed moved out from the new and active hamlet of Birmingham, and a few miles northward, he stopped and looked around, and liked what he saw.

The Wide Valley

From a slight ridge, he drank in with eager eyes the scene before him, a wide and fertile valley, well carpeted with trees. On both sides and perhaps four miles apart, towered the majestic mountains.

Here was a wide sweep of land, well suited to settlement and farming. At the foot of Bald Eagle mountain, on Reed's left as he faced down the valley, had been an Indian village some years ago. But, it was gone. Near it, shortly, was to arise the village of Warriors Mark.

When the Revolutionary War ended, leaving the usual bitterness of conflict, the Indians destroyed their town and moved westward, to Ohio, some said. Few traces of their habitation were left, and here and there, rising smoke indicated the log cabins of white settlers.

The first in the region are believed to have been the Richetts family. But, others were moving in, and, on Oct. 3, 1821, on behalf of the proprietor, James Gray, Reed platted Warriors Mark town at the intersection of the Birmingham-Pennsylvania Furnace and Philipsburg roads.

First Land Warrants

Reed was not the first to see this land and like it, by any means. The first land warrants issued in Warriors Mark Township were granted July 28, 1766, to John Baynton and Samuel Wharton. Their land lay from the foot of Bald Eagle Ridge to the Little Juniata River and to a point a mile or so northeast of the later location of Warriors Mark village. These first settlers soon found that iron ore abounded in the area, and shortly iron-masters and their furnaces appeared.

Legend and fact, perhaps, combine in the name of Warriors Mark. In 1845, Michael Maguire who came with his parents to the county in 1773, said that when they first came, they found marks made by Indian warriors on trees near the village.

BIG OAK ON GRAZIER FARM WAS MARK FOR INDIAN ARROWS

The Mark Tree

Four great oaks, about a half mile or so northwest, about where the Indian village once stood, bore marks of arrows and hatchet. Stones found in the crotches indicated that perhaps the Indians used them for games of skill or war games, standing in the center of the four trees, and then whirling and letting fly arrows at the stone marks, something on the order of modern skeet shotgun shooting.

Gashes in the trees indicated that perhaps the Indians hurled their tomahawks at them, also.

About 1863, J. Simpson Africa said Henry Krider took him to a spot on his farm northwest of Warriors Mark town and showed him the four trees with their healed gashes. He saw the "remains of four forked oak trees standing on the angles of a quadrangular figure; in the fork of each was a stone almost wholly covered by layers of new wood. These he (Krider) called the warriors' marks".

What is reputed to be the last remaining of these oak tree marks was viewed the other day by the writer. The tree is on the Edwin Grazier farm, between Warriors Mark and Spring Mount, also called Cross Roads.

Mrs. Grazier very kindly took the writer across the road to a grove of trees and, some 50 yards from the fence, standing alone in a slight clearing, was the Warriors Mark tree. Its exact location, and, in fact, its very existence are not generally known.

Hollow Trunk

There were some trees as tall, or taller, but none with its spread of branches and foliage. Its girth, at first sight, did not indicate the great age necessary if this were indeed the Indian mark tree. For, if it is, it must be well over 200 years old, and more likely closer to 300, since it would have had to have some height to serve as a mark for the Indians who left the area between 1785 and 1800.

However, the heart of the tree is rotted out, as the accompanying photo shows, and it may be that this heart rot has deterred normal growth for countless years.

Nevertheless, with its weakened trunk, this historic tree may not last much longer, and when it goes down, certainly efforts should be made to cut up its trunk for further evidence, perhaps arrow heads, of its storied past.

Found Arrow Heads

Mr. Grazier, through the years, has found many arrow heads on his farm, but none near the mark tree. Most of them, he has found in corn fields. And, his neighbor, on the other side of Spring Mount, Harold Clark, also has found numerous arrow heads, spear points and tomahawk heads, and most of these, Mr. Clark, too, has turned up while plowing corn.

The greatest concentration of these Indian artifacts seems to be just north of the Grazier home, and south of the Clark home.

Mr. Clark also has found a coin believed to be Spanish and bearing the date 1772.

The last Indians reported in the valley were Job Chillaway, a Delaware; Shaney John, a Mingo; and Captain Logan, a Cayuga. This probably was 125 to 135 years ago.

Joseph Grazier, a German, settled in the township about 1790. That name, along with many others, Krider, Buck, Beck, John Eyer, Caleb Guyer, Jacob Nearhoof, are familiar in the Warriors Mark vicinity to this day.

John Buck came from Dauphin County. He had nine children, Jacob, Isaac, John, Christian, Benjamin, Samuel and David, Nancy and Catherine.

Spring Mount

Spring Mount, or Cross Roads is so close to Warriors Mark as to be closely associated with it and practically a part of it. It lies about a mile or so north of the village. It formerly was the farm of Henry Krider, who built a blacksmith shop there. Daniel Caraher became the smith.

Shortly, the business of the smithy drew other business, and James Cox set up operations as a cabinet maker. Others who settled at this point included, David Bratton, George Miesse, John Whipple, John Krider, son or brother of Henry; George Gill, John and Huston Hartsock, Perry Minnick, Samuel Grey, John Weaver, Jeremiah Eyer, J. E. Wilt and many other names to become well known in the valley.

Near the close of the last century, the Tyrone and Spruce Creek Railroad was built through this area. It carried mail, milk and passengers for many years. The station was built on the rise just east of Warriors Mark in 1881.

Milk Run Special

This "milk run special" meandered around the hills and gullies of the valley out around Pennsylvania Furnace on a scenic trip that many persons took just for the beauty of the view.

For years, many visited Fairbrook Country Club by way of the railroad. The former clubhouse is now the home of R. L. Harpster, Warriors Mark garageman.

The line ceased operations some 35 years ago, and the tracks have been removed. But the roadbed is plainly visible in many places, as well as remains of several trestles.

Well Known Names

James Gray, the proprietor, had obtained his lands from Daniel Pennington, one of the earliest settlers, for whom Pennington Ridge was named.

J. H. and John F. Mattern were among the best known perhaps of the early merchants, and there has been a Mattern store in Warriors Mark since around the middle of the last century. The present Mattern Store, on the main corner, is operated by Mr. and Mrs. John Hoover, Mrs. Hoover is the former Mary Mattern.

Warriors Mark's first postmaster was Samuel W. Stonebraker, a name well known in the valley and in Tyrone and vicinity. Other early leaders of the community were Dr. Henry K. Neff, Dr. Oliver G. Scott, Dr. James W. Dunwiddie, John Rider, a pioneer carpenter, Dr. J. A. Deaver, George Shank, Vincent Miller and Wilson Rowe.

Today, Warriors Mark is a quiet little cross roads village of clean, neat homes, most of them with attractive gardens and velvety green lawns. Business centers at the corner, where a garage and restaurant as well as the store and postoffice are centers of activity.

The peace of its tree-shaded streets is seldom disturbed by anything more than motor traffic. It has beauty, restfulness and a gallant and virile past.

CHRISTIAN BUCK

Christian Buck was born in Londonderry Township, Lancaster County, now known as Conewago Township, Dauphin County, Pa. in 1754. He was the son of Johannes Buch and, Mother's name unknown. He was reared in Londonderry Township and was married there to Catherine (name unknown). She was born in 1748. According to tax records he was taxed in this township in 1782 for 100 acres of land, 3 cattle, 4 sheep, 0 negroes, 0 mills, 1 house, seven inhabitants, and one other building. To date I have not been able to locate the exact place where this farm is located.

During the Revolutionary War Christian served in the Militia as well as did his brothers John and Frederick. The following is his service record found in the Pa. Archives, Fifth Series, Volume 7, page 726.

Lancaster Militia for October 1, 1781, Christian Buck, Second Class, Colonel Alexander Mowrys Company, David McQueen, Captain.

Also on page 759, for the year commencing in October 1782. This is a true and exact list of the names of each and every male white person inhabiting or residing within my district in the Fourth Company of the Seventh Battalion of Lancaster County Militia between the ages of 18 and 53 years. Colonel Alexander Mowrys Company, Christian Buck--Second Class.

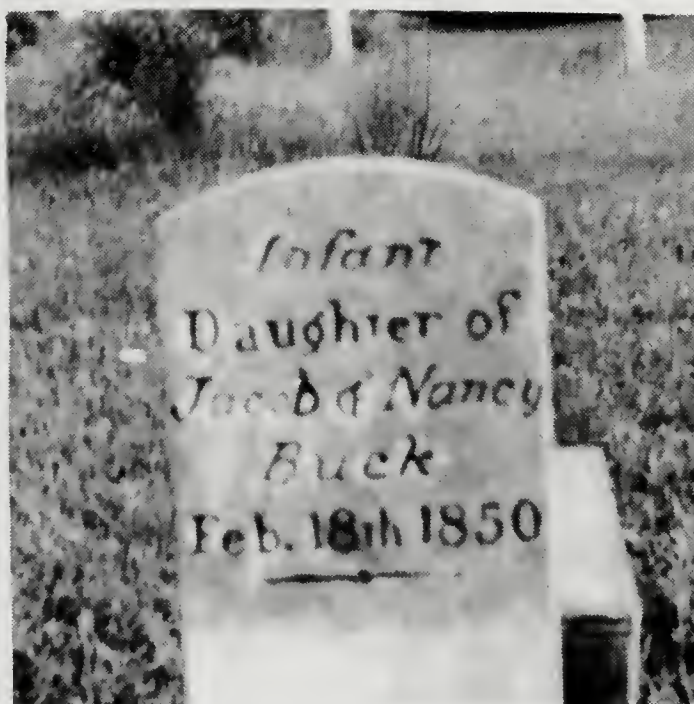

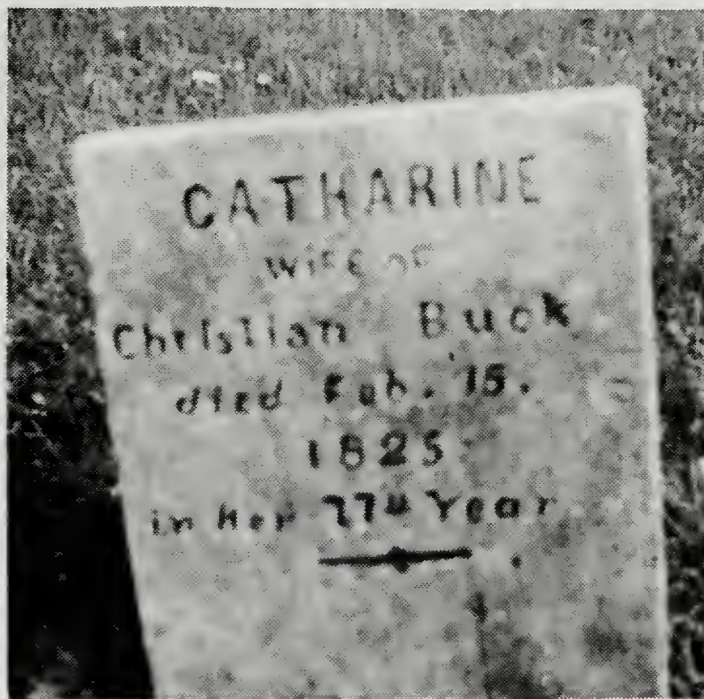

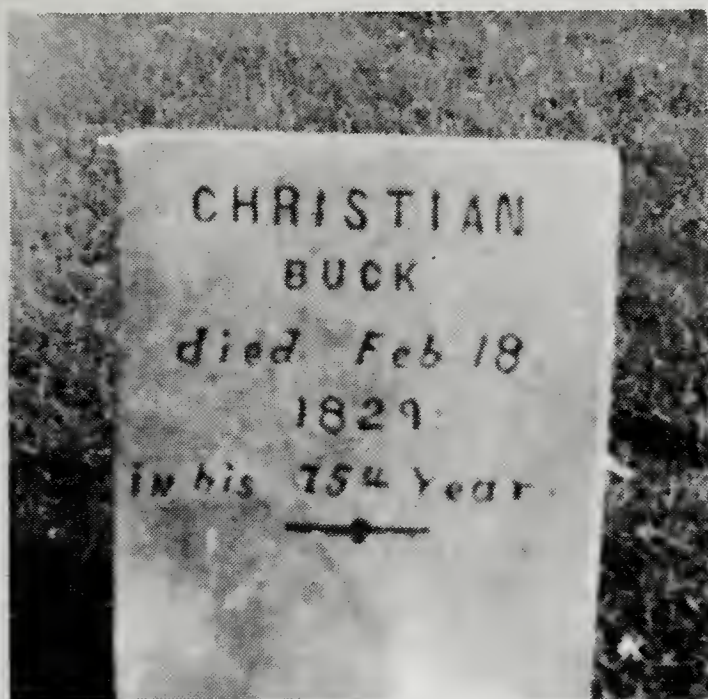

Also again on page 786 of the Archives.

Members of the Militia did not fight. They guarded the home front, gave arms and food for the army and helped to transport the same.

About 1813 Christian and his wife with their son John and his wife Catherine Longenecker Buck traveled by covered wagon and went up into the Warriors Mark Valley in Huntingdon County, Pa. Christian bought a farm consisting of 212 acres; this farm lays two miles east of Tyrone, Pa. and is now owned by Mr. L. R. Clark. Below is pictured the house and barn as they look today.

Christian and his wife Catherine and a grandson Samuel, son of John Buck Sr., and an infant daughter of Nancy and Jacob Buck are buried on this farm. Christian's wife, Catherine, died February 15, 1825, in her 77th year. Christian died January 18, 1829 in his 75th year.

FAMILY OF BARBARA BUCK AND JACOB LONGENECKER

- II. Barbara Buck, the second child of Christian and Catherine Buck, was born in Londonderry Township, Lancaster County, now Dauphin County, Pa., November 27, 1781. Died July 23, 1861 at Bachmanville, Pa. She married Jacob Longenecker who was born near Campbellstown, Pa., May 16, 1774. He died at Bachmanville, Pa., November 30, 1856. They are both buried in Stauffer's Mennonite churchyard in Bachmanville, Pa. Below is pictured their tombstones and church.

Jacob Longenecker, the husband of Barbara Buck, was the descendent of Ullrich Longacre his immigrant ancestor. Ullrich and his brother, Daniel Longacre, were the Colonial ancestors of the Longenecker, Longacre, Longnacker families of Pennsylvania. During the Spanish Inquisition and the murder of St. Bartholomew they fled to Switzerland and settled in or near Zurich. They were descendents of the Huguenots and in Europe as well as here they were German Quakers and Mennonites. Daniel was a Mennonite minister and continued in these duties when he came to this country.

In 1733 Daniel and Ullrich came to this country. Ullrich came with his wife and two children, Ullrich Jr. 22 and Jacob 19.

The descendents of Daniel changed the name to Longacre. The descendents of Ullrich in Lancaster County changed the name to Longenecker, a few Longanaker and one branch adopted Longnecker. The Longenecker families of Bedford, Blair and Huntingdon counties are descendents of the Lancaster Longeneckers or the descendents of Ullrich.

The father of Jacob Longenecker (husband of Barbara Buck) was Abraham Longenecker, born in Lebanon County in 1748. He died in Lebanon County in 1823. Abraham married Barbara Fretz and they had 7 children; Jacob (our subject), Abraham, Daniel, Elizabeth, Veronica, Barbara and Peter.

The record of the family of Jacob and Barbara Buck Longenecker was taken from tombstones in the Stauffer Mennonite churchyard at Bachmanville, Pa. There are any number of Longeneckers buried there, but I took the names from the tombstones nearest the parents', Barbara and Jacob's graves. According to my records Barbara Buck and Jacob Longenecker had 9 children;

IV. FAMILY OF JOHN AND CATHERINE LONGENECKER BUCK

IV. John Buck, Sr., the fourth child of Christian and Catherine Buck, was born in Londonderry Township, Lancaster County, Pa., June 7, 1788. This part of Lancaster County became part of Dauphin County when said county was formed in 1785. He married Catherine Longenecker born in Londonderry Township, Lancaster County, Pa., November 5, 1794. Both were reared in this township and were married there. In 1813 they left there with John's parents in a covered wagon and went up into Huntingdon Valley by way of Spruce Creek and into Half Moon Valley and Warriors Mark. They settled in Warriors Mark Township where he purchased a farm of 200 acres. This was timber land which he cleared and on which he erected good substantial buildings. The residence was plastered on the outside and has since been replaced by a more modern home, but the old barn is still doing service.

In politics John was a Whig and was a popular and efficient member of a number of important offices of trust in his home community where he was recognized as a man of mark in all the relations of life.*

John and his wife were both members of the Dunkard church. John died January 26, 1868, age 79 years, 7 months and 19 days. Catherine, his wife, died August 11, 1874, age 79 years, 9 months and 6 days. They are interred in the Nearhoof Cemetery at Cross Roads just outside of Warriors Mark.

They were the parents of 9 children as follows:

A. Jacob Buck, born July 18, 1816, died January 22, 1888.

FAMILY OF JACOB AND NANCY WOOLHEATER BUCK

- A. Jacob Buck was born July 18, 1816 near Warriors Mark, Pa. He was reared to manhood here, and on November 26, 1840 he married Nancy Woolheater of Morris Township, Huntingdon County, Pa. Nancy was born at Colrain Forge, Huntingdon County, Pa. July 24, 1819. She was the daughter of Adam Woolheater who was born in 1793 and died September 14, 1864, and Mary Woolheater born in 1801, and died May 7, 1849, aged 48 years, 6 months, and 27 days. Adam and Mary Woolheater are buried on their farm just outside of Warriors Mark, Pa.

After the marriage of Jacob Buck and Nancy Woolheater, they settled on a farm on the west side of what is now State Highway 550, between Tyrone and Warriors Mark, near the community of Stover.

This is a recent photograph of a barn, believed to belong to his farm -

Here at this farm were born the first group of their fifteen children, thirteen of whom were raised to manhood and womanhood, two having died in infancy. A daughter named Nancy is buried in the same location as her grandparents.

Jacob Buck became discontented with this farm, because of seemingly poor soil and lack of an adequate water supply, compelling him to haul water for his stock during dry seasons, resulting in his attempt to locate elsewhere.

Sometime in the year 1851 he made a horseback trip from Tyrone west thru Tuckahoe Valley, passing thru Collinsville to what is now Roselawn (Eldorado) south of Altoona. Here he found a gently sloping area with seemingly a plentiful supply of water from Kittanning Run and Sugar Run streams, with several springs coming from the hillside.

This location so impressed him as a better home site, that he arranged to purchase the 169 acres although at the time it was mostly in timber (woods) of a very good quality, hickory, walnut, oak and maple being prominent and of large size. His original purchase included all land between the Cabbage Town road and the Broad Avenue road to Canan Station, Kittanning Run east to where the South Altoona Shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad are located.

The following year, 1852 (no factual record is available) Jacob Buck and his sons went to his new purchase in a Conestoga wagon (such wagons were the only ones in use at this time) to fell timber, cut logs and erect a log house for his family. While they were doing this they slept in the covered wagon. This log house was erected about 300 feet south of 58th Street (Roselawn) on the north side of the Sixth Avenue route to Duncansville, where the Atlantic Service Station is now located, for the erection of which this log house was torn down in 1956. When this log house was originally built it had no inside stairway, the second floor sleeping quarters for the children was reached by ladder from the outside.

Here in this log house were born another group of his children and here he lived until the farm was established, several fields cleared and put in production. He eventually sold a portion of this purchase with the introduction of the Railroad, retaining that portion bounded by the Railroad, 58th Street, and the Cabbage Town Road. It was then he decided to build a more suitable farm house on the hillside along side of a spring whose water came out of the hill.

This new house was typical of the farm houses of that period. It had an upper and lower porch on the side facing Eldorado, a porch in the rear level with the lawn. Here he planted an orchard and vineyard. The large barn was erected west of the house on the same hillside, as was the custom in erecting bank type barns at that time.

House as it looks today.

Carson Valley Church

In this new house his younger children were born, and here he lived until he died, when the family was so reduced by marriage and death, that the wife and children living at home could not maintain a farm, so his wife built a house at 1615 Fourteenth Avenue in Altoona and moved off the farm, turning it over to Trevan Buck, a son, for operation. Trevan operated this farm for a number of years when he decided farming was not for him, when it was sold, later to be divided into lots and developed as Roselawn section of Altoona.

Jacob Buck and his wife were members of the Carson Valley Church of the Brethren (just outside of Eldorado, Pa.) which they helped to establish.

THE SPANOGLA FAMILY

*Due to the fact that the Spanogle family has intermarried with the Buck family it is necessary at this point to give a brief resume on their family as the remaining chapters of this book deal with Mary and Nancy Spanogle, sisters, who married Abraham and Jacob Buck, brothers.

The Spanogles are of German descent and the founder of the American branch of the family was a native of Baden, Bauden - a city and watering place in the Grand Duchy of Baden, an important province of the German Empire.

When they came to this country they landed in Baltimore, the State of Maryland, and from there migrated to Germany Valley which is east of the Aughwick Creek on the right bottomlands between Owen Ridge and the Black Log bordering what is now known as Shirleysburg, Pa. This valley was practically an unbroken wilderness and just here and there was found a pioneer cabin. These could only be found by following marked trees over the mountains, through narrow valleys, through creeks and swamps until one came to a clearing in the midst of which one found a log cabin that had been erected from the timber surrounding it.

The floor of their cabins was made of earth and smoothed by a grub hoe. If the pioneer was well to do he had a wooden floor. This was considered a luxury. Cracks in the cabins served two purposes - to let smoke out and light and air in. By this light the pioneer did his evening work and read his Bible.

Here in Germany Valley in 1802 the Aughwick Church of the Brethren was organized with six members, who only spoke German, namely Christian Long and wife, Daniel Sechrist and wife and Peter Sechrist and wife. Christian was chosen as the minister and Daniel the deacon. Because of the language barrier it took a few years to get a really good start. When Jacob Lutz was chosen as minister, the organization moved faster because he could speak English. In 1827 Andrew Spanogle, Sr. was chosen as their minister. John and William Spanogle were also members of this church.

Though our pioneer ancestors may have been unlettered and unlearned, there never lived a more healthy, hardy, courageous or hospitable people than these pioneers from Maryland.

FAMILY OF ABRAHAM AND MARY SPANOGLA BUCK

VI. Abraham was the sixth child of Christian and Catherine Buck. He was born in 1792 in Londonderry Township, Lancaster County, Pa., which is now in Dauphin County. He died in 1863. He married Mary Spanogle, daughter of John, Sr. and Mary Nancy Spanogle of Warriors Mark Valley, Pa. She was born in 1797, died in 1888. After they were married they traveled by covered wagon from Warriors Mark Valley, Pa. to northern Illinois where they took up settlement in the Pine Creek community ten miles east of Polo, Illinois. This was a very heavily timbered section of the state. There were walnut, hickory, and butternut trees and hazelnut bushes without number. By hard and persistent effort the land was cleared and each of Abraham's six sons received a farm. The land was very fertile and today this same land is very valuable.

At one time the six sons of Abraham lived not many miles apart. Finally four went west; Jacob and John going to Kansas, Tobias to Missouri, and Samuel to South Dakota. Andrew and Henry remained in Illinois.

Mary and Abraham Buck were consistent members of the Pine Creek Church of the Brethren. This church was organized in 1858, and at this time Abraham Buck, Benjamin Kessler, and Daniel Price were chosen as deacons. William Funk deeded two and a half acres of land to the deacons who also served as trustees, for a church site and a brick church was erected. After thirty years it was judged unsafe and it was replaced by a new one on the same site. In 1907 it was remodeled and is still in use.

In this church cemetery we find the following laid to rest: Abraham and Mary Buck, Hannah and Sarah, and an infant, children of Abraham and Mary. Mary, wife of Henry Buck, and their daughter, Sarah Ida.

BIBLIOGRAPHY

In writing a family history such as this, much research has to be done to obtain information on our pioneer ancestors. We have been very fortunate in obtaining the greater part of our history from old family records that have been carefully preserved over the years. However we, the authors, wish to give credit to the following:

History of German and Swiss Settlers of Southeastern Pennsylvania by H. Frank Eshleman.

History of Dauphin and Lebanon Counties, by William Henry Egle.

History of Huntingdon and Blair Counties, by Simpson Africa.

History of the Church of the Brethren of the Middle District of Pennsylvania. 1925.

Photostat copies of the ship's lists, from Pennsylvania German Pioneers, by Ralph B. Strassburger, L. L. D., Edited by William John Hinke, Ph. D. D. D.

Photostat copies of Original Surveys, Warrant and Patent, Bureau of Land Records, Department of Internal Affairs, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Stories of Warriors Mark by Ella Snowberger, Dr. William F. Beck and Robert W. Boyer, taken from the Altoona Mirror, Altoona, Pa.

Photographs accompanying Robert W. Boyer's article taken from the Altoona Mirror, Altoona, Pennsylvania.

Quit Claim of Christian Buck, Dauphin County Courthouse, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Will of Christian Buck, Huntingdon County Courthouse, Huntingdon, Pennsylvania.

The people who willingly furnished family records and pictures.
